ActiveYards® ALUMINUM FENCE

Aluminum fencing should be strong, durable and well designed. We've taken that a step further. By using an Active Yards innovative construction system called Corigin, which connects the pickets and rails from the inside out and fortifies the core, we are able to produce aluminum fences that are built to last longer and perform better than other fencing options. This smart design also removes the need for screws, which can become rusty and loose over time. For a fence that will stand strong against the elements year after year. We've got you covered.
